A course for spine surgeons and corporate leaders

Dear Colleagues:

Thank you for taking a moment to learn about this year's Bridging the Gap meeting (BTG), and to consider attending. BTG is refreshingly different from any meeting in our field, with numerous attendees telling us the meeting is enjoyable, profoundly worthwhile, and even life-changing.

While most meetings focus on research, technology, and techniques, BTG emphasizes the skills that will most significantly benefit us at work and in our personal lives. In 2024, we focused on the personal care of the surgeon, while this year we're excited to focus on Leadership.

Learning how to be an excellent leader is critical for the OR, but it's also key for us in finding greater success and enjoyment in our profession, our families, and ourselves. The program outline on page 5 highlights the topics with which we'll engage.

BTG is open to more than just spine surgeons. You're welcome to bring your spouse or partner to the sessions, which will also be attended by other health care professionals and industry executives. Our goal is to create an environment where we all learn and grow together.

You'll have noticed on the front page that the goal of BTG is: Learn. Play. Give. We aim to provide a space in which knowledge is acquired and put into action while we have fun together and are challenged to give back to those around us.

We hope you feel inspired to join BTG on this journey!

Target Audience

This course is designed for surgeons and medical professionals in the spine surgery field, as well as personnel from spine companies.

This course is not CME accredited.

The San Diego Spine Foundation (SDSF) was established by Behrooz A. Akbarnia, M.D. in 2004 to support spine-related research and education. The SDSF's mission statement is to advance the treatment (or care of patients with) spinal disorders by empowering surgeons through innovative research, education, and professional development opportunities.

Marinus de Kleuver, MD (BTG 2024 Visiting Professor):

I think it's hugely impactful that we talk about other aspects than just being the medical professional, who's a technician. We're all human and we are all in a very complex environment, stressful environment, and it's underestimated how much impact this has on everybody's life. The topics resonate with all of us, especially in the surgical community where it appears that, people are all invulnerable. And here we have people talking about all their stresses in their life in a very open way. Beautiful environment to have these discussions and I find it quite empowering.
